the unicorn may be amiable enough to hurry to the shore (and the worthy animal may allow itself to be caught and preserved for the benefit), and I will not bring back less than I can for the Museum of Natural History." But in the meantime, the Pacific Ocean, which, to return to France, we were to cross, "Conseil," I called in an impatient voice. For a Flemish boy, who had accompanied me in all my travels, the liking well. He was quiet by nature, regular in his habits, evincing little disturbance at the different services he was apt at any service required of him; and, as he was not to PURSUE THE MONSTER, THE MONSTER DID NOT APPEAR. I HAD BEEN SO MUCH TALKED OF, EVEN THROUGH THE ATLANTIC BACK!

One magnificent evening, the 30th July (that is to say, three days before our departure), the frigate was abreast of Cape Blanc, thirty miles leeward of the coast of Patagonia. We had crossed the tropic of Capricorn, and the Straits of Magellan opened less than seventy miles to the south. Before eight days were over the Abraham Lincoln would be ploughing the waters of the Pacific. Seated on the poop, Ned Land and I were chatting of one thing and another as we sailed the mysterious sea, whose great depths had up to this time been unexplored. I NATURALLY LED UP THE CONVERSATION TO THE GIANT UNICORN, THE VARIOUS CHANCES OF SUCCESS OR FAILURE OF THE EXPEDITION. SEEING THAT NED LAND LET ME SPEAK WITHOUT SAYING TOO MUCH!

Capricorn, and the Straits of Magellan opened less than seven hundred miles to the south. Before eight days were over the Abraham Lincoln would be ploughing the waters of the Pacific. Seated on the poop, Ned Land and I were chatting of one thing and another as we sailed the mysterious sea, whose great depths had up to this time been inaccessible to the eye of man. I naturally led up the conversation to the unicorn, and examined the various chances of success or failure of the expedition. But, seeing that Ned Land let me speak for myself, I pressed him more closely. "Well, Ned," said I, "is it possible that you are not convinced of the existence of the unicorn, and are following? Have you any particular reason for being so incredulous?" The harpooner looked at me fixedly for some moments before answering, struck his broad forehead with his hand (a habit of his), as if to collect himself, and said at last, "Perhaps I have, Mr. Ahab, you, a whaler by profession, familiarised with all the great marine mammalia—You ought to be the last to doubt under the circumstances. HAVE YOU ANY PARTICULAR REASON FOR BEING SO INGREDULOUS?" THE HARPOONER LOOKED AT ME FIXEDLY FOR SOME MOMENTS BEFORE ANSWERING, STRUCK HIS BROAD FOREHEAD WITH HIS HAND (A HABIT OF HIS), AS IF TO COLLECT HIMSELF, AND SAID AT LAST, "PERHAPS I HAVE, MR. A HAB, YOU, A WHALER BY PROFESSION, FAMILIARISED WITH ALL THE GREAT MARINE MAMMALIA—YOU OUGHT TO BE THE LAST TO DOUBT UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES."

En activant l'option « petites capitales » les lettres bas-de-casse sont transformées en petites capitales et les chiffres alignés en chiffres elzéviens.

L'option « tout en petites capitales » disponible dans l'onglet OpenType convertira également les capitales en petites capitales.

La position et les approches de la ponctuation sont automatiquement corrigées pour s'adapter aux petites capitales quand vous sélectionnez l'une ou l'autre de ces options.
